

SH 1-003-23

Gloster Gladiator

Lithuanian Air Force

The Gloster Gladiator was the last british biplane fighter and the first to have a closed cockpit. Even though it was inferior to most axis planes, it was still used heavily in World War 2. The Royal Air Force used it mostly on the mediterranean theatres. It was also used by many other air forces.