

Heinkel He-111H

Czechoslovak Air Force, captured aircraft, 1946

The Heinkel He-111 was the principal Medium Bomber of the German Luftwaffe in World War 2. While gradually replaced by newer types, it served until the end of the war in various roles. The Spanish license-built version, the CASA 2.111 even served until long after the war.

The H-type was the most produced bomber version with the famous assymetric glazed nose. Its engines have the side intake on the starboard side and more round exhausts or a unified single exhaust pipes on each side.
